

NEAT WAYS OF DRESS

How to Manage the Awkward Wrinkles of Crinoline.

THINGS TO BE AVOIDED

Some Timely Suggestions on the Harmony of Colors and External Features of Things—Woman Notes.

Two essential things to be avoided just now are the adoption of very full and overladen hats and bonnets and the adoption of the popular and exceedingly striking contrasts of color in dress and millinery, both of which are inappropriate and unbecoming to the majority of women. Crinoline also, except in the hands of a skilled dressmaker, has a most marvellous and awkward effect. Many of the new "Easter gowns" were spoiled by the introduction of this lining, the exact line where it ceased just below or above the knee being plainly visible. It is far better to reach to the belt than to show its end half way up the skirt; and stout women would better dispense with the sewing or other specified work. The society believes that a part of each day belongs to the young woman for recreation in the open air or as she may select. The association intends to see to it that applicants, including young women workers of the city and country residents, are desirable candidates for such exchange of "help."

The society is entirely philanthropic, but is not connected with charity movements, inasmuch as it arranges an exchange that involves "value received" on both sides. Auxiliaries are in process of formation in other towns.

Walking into Spheres.
Women are decidedly coming to the fore in the old world. The London Times has within the last few months enlisted the services of several lady contributors, and one of them—a Miss Shaw—is now touring in the various Austro-Hungarian provinces as a special correspondent of the leading organ of the English press. At Antwerp two ladies have just been appointed as assistant clerks of the court for civil cases, while in Sweden and in Denmark the masculine reporters in the press gallery of the national legislatures have been replaced by women. Moreover, the official stenographer of the lower house of the Danish parliament is a Miss Grundtvig.

Adaptable Duse Turban.
The Duse turbans are becoming to faces either oval or slender, because the crown is low and the brim of only moderate depth, the hat can be left in its original shape for slender-faced women or built up with towering trimmings for those with full faces. These stiff material altogether and elect for a lining of thin lining-muslin, inexpensive silk, satin, or any other suitable lightly dressed fabric, trusting to outside trimmings rather than inside appliances to produce the desired expanding effects. Shirts are now so full at the bottom that rows of ruching, a series of bands, frills, etc., give a sufficiently rounded look to models made up with crinoline eliminated from the linings altogether.

Origin of the Menu.

It was the Duke Henry of Brunswick who was first observed in the intervals of a banquet to scan carefully a long strip of paper by the side of his plate, and when the curious guests ventured to inquire into the nature of his studies he explained that it was a sort of program of the dinner which he had commanded from the cook to the intent that if some delicacy which especially appealed to him were marked for a late stage in the repast he might carefully reserve his appetite for it. The simplicity and beauty of the idea appeared instantly to the good duke's convives, and the menu card from that moment became an institution. In its old-fashioned form the bill was usually written turbans and many other hats of similar shape can be worn upon any occasion, the plain or elaborate style of their garniture settling the question of their appropriateness for church, theater, street or traveling use. For full dress wear some of the Duse turbans are made wholly of fine flowers, the standing carmine formed of long stemmed roses and foliage.

Children's "Fads."

An interesting thing about children is a way they have of taking up and dropping what is called in people "fads." A passionate inclination for doing some one thing will seize them and the fond parents are often led thereby to construct upon this flimsy basis future artists, poets and scientists, only to find themselves gazing in rueful astonishment upon an array of very commonplace boys and girls later on.—Washington Post.

Mrs. Astor's Love of Flowers.

Mrs. William Astor's fondness for flowers is well known among her intimates. "Lilies," she is quoted as saying, "are my favorites, and I would rather see them growing than pick and wear them. Somehow a flower loses its charm for me when its little life is cut off. It looks and and sorry and seems to wilt with grief."

Notes of Current Modes.

Light summer fabrics, which are now being made up in quantities by modistes have round French bodices without darts or side forms and are draped in surplus fabric both back and front. Sometimes these suits are very full and are draped from the right shoulder to the left underarm seam with a soft, wide cascade reaching well up under the arms all around the figure.

As serviceable as they are stylish are castor gloves. These gloves are especially desirable for ordinary use. The leather is soft and pliable, and it sponges now and then in warm water in which a bit of castile soap has been dissolved the gloves can be kept in good wearing condition for a long time.

Black laces were never more the vogue. They are used for boleros, collarettes, fichus, sleeves and parts of dresses, jacket fronts and neck and belt garnitures. Ecru lace enjoys almost equal favor and later in the season will be even more the mode.

A Parisian novelty in the jacket line of pale heliotrope cloth lined in gold and velvet suit and elegantly embroidered in black and gold. These jackets have immense sleeves and pocketflaps, spreading over the shoulders and close fitting waistcoat.

A simple and stylish traveling costume of Harris tweed made with a Russian blouse, a flaring empire skirt, very full sleeves and a belt embroidered in intricate brocade. The blouse has ornaments the foot of the skirt.

The latest thing in the matron-like sleeve is larger, wider and fuller than it has been. It is not only placed at the arm hole, but also at the elbow, on the outside and inside of the arm, to give it the desired draped effect.

Among the modish new capes for spring is one in Polish fashion, made of Persian or peacock cloth, with yoke and waist, standing arched collar of black velvet. Superb jet bands and ornaments are used for trimming.

Jewels of various sorts are favorite ornaments for the hair. Not only are they in the form of flowers but of spiders, butterflies, bees and humming birds.

The favorite material for the natty primrose coats which are much the vogue as street garments is of rough cloth in very light shades or those woven with

"Royal Ruby" Rye Whisky is free from all foreign flavors and adulterants; naturally ripened in wood, it is a Rye as is a Rye, and costs no more than inferior brands. Try it and you will never be satisfied to use any other. A pure old whisky is always free from fuel oil, which is a poison, and should not be taken into the system. Age eliminates it from the spirit of oxidation, and it is converted into fragrant ethers, which give the bouquet to whisky.

When you want a whisky for medicinal use you want it pure. "Royal Ruby" Rye is guaranteed pure in every particular, and recommended for the invalid and the convalescent. (Bottled at distillery.) $1.25 per quart bottle. ROYAL RUBIN CO., Chicago. For sale by Scribner & Aldworth, druggists.
